H. C. Historical Academy Meets

Papers Read on Bollandist, Spain and Historical Monuments

The third regular meeting of the Holy Cross History Academy, held last Thursday evening in Room 10, was featured by the reading of three papers on topics of interest to the historian. A paper on current events, concerning the "Present Situation in Spain," was contributed by J. F. Morris, '33, while John Ward, '33, read a composition on "The Work of the Bollandists in History." Frederick Connelly, '32, then read a paper on "Historical Monuments." The meeting was presided over by President Pro Tem, Edward P. Lilly, '32. A lively discussion followed the reading of the papers under the guidance of the Moderator, Fr. P. J. Higgins, S.J.

In his paper Mr. Morris gave a summary of the History of Spain to date in which were considered present conditions of living and education in Spain. The various angles of the abdication of Alphonse XIII as ruler of Spain were also presented. The paper aroused an interesting discussion.

A Bolendist, as told by Mr. Ward, is a Jesuit writer who takes as his subject the lives of the Saints. This was begun in the early part of the seventeenth century by Fr. Rossweig, S.J. The work was to be in three volumes and the enormity of the task was seen soon after it was begun. Father Rossweig died before the work was completed, but other Jesuits came to the fore under the guidance of Father Bolendus, S.J., whose name

K. C. PREPARES GALA FESTIVAL

Cross Students to Enjoy Don Bigelow's Park Central Orchestra

The recent announcement that Don Bigelow and his Park Central Hotel Orchestra has been secured for the Spring Dance which is to be given by the Crusader Council at the Bancroft Hotel on the evening of May 1, has greatly increased the interest in the affair. This choice of an orchestra certainly does credit to the committee in charge of the affair for the orchestra enjoys a wide-spread reputation throughout the East. It is in great demand at all times and the Crusader Council is indeed fortunate in being able to secure its presence.

At present, Mr. Bigelow is playing his second season at the Park Central, New York. Previous to this, his orchestra played at the Biltmore, with the R. K. O. vaudeville circuit, in Chicago and Cincinnati. His orchestra originated in Bigelow's home town, Pittsburgh.

The dance is to be semi-formal. The ballroom of the Bancroft Hotel has been engaged and all the necessary arrangements have been made and the success of the affair is assured. The list of patrons is already quite long and still others have as yet to be heard from.

This is being held in celebration of the second anniversary of the founding of the Crusader Council of the Knights of Columbus. Daniel Lynch, the chairman of the dance, expects that a great number of the students will attend the celebration. Entertainment will be supplied by the trio, which is one of the features of Don Bigelow's Orchestra and by the two popular juniors, Ray Howe, the husky New Yorker, and Tom Caulfield.

This dance will be the outstanding social event of the Spring at the college. It is the biggest affair that the Crusader Council has yet undertaken and will be attended by a great number, both of the Knights and by other students.

Bids may be obtained from Dan Lynch in his room, 3 Beaven, at $3.50 per couple. Many students have already obtained their bids and many others plan to go.

The proceeds of the affair are to go to the Scholarship Fund and to the Building Fund of the college. The Crusader Council has started a fund for giving scholarships and when this is large enough it will be turned over to the college.

SOPH RECEPTION SET FOR FRIDAY

Crusaders Minstrel and Skits With Other Features Form Program

The date of the sophomore reception to the freshmen has been set definitely for Friday, April 24. The affair will start promptly at seven forty-five as a lengthy program has been arranged by the committee in charge. Various members of the sophomore class have been diligently rehearsing their parts for some time now and everything is sure to go off in tip-top shape. The Easter holidays necessarily postponed the event which had been scheduled to take place at an earlier date but the participants in this gala entertainment have made good use of this time to get in a few extra rehearsals and thus insure the frosh of a high class performance.

Freddie Mirliani and his Purple Crusaders, fresh from a highly successful Easter tour of Connecticut and New Jersey, will be on hand with a lot of brand new dance numbers to liven up the occasion. They will feature Larry Carroll in a group of song hits. Larry, incidentally, made a big hit with all the audiences on the Easter tour.

A skit personally coached by Harry Kerwin is bound to give the boys a lot of fun. The cast will comprise the more talented sophs who are members of the Dramatic Club. Harry and his group of hard-working Thespians have spent a lot of time on their number and the players have their parts down to perfection. Eddie Hidalgo has another skit which he has coached. It's a riot.

Along the musical lines the class of '33 is blessed with a lot of fine talent and the frosh will get the benefit of it all Friday night. A trio, consisting of Bill Conway and Tom Harold at the violin and Anthony Tamason with his viola, will present a series of numbers. Then there is a surprise treat in store for all. A quartet of Holy Cross serenaders who are experienced radio artists will entertain with a few selections.

One grand minstrel show by top Alumni is slated to hold the boards for the last half of the performance. "Red" Flanagan has general charge of the minstrel and will have as his end men: Frank Cammarano, Dick Linehan, Walt Clifford, Frank Cavalierio, Don Kelley and Bill Keating. Paul Shannon's loose ankles will be tossed around to the tune of some jazzy melody. Watch him step! Joe Dunn and Tom McKeon have a batch of song hits to say nothing of Jerry Sheehan who has graciously consented to perform.

The sophomore class has spent

Hellenic Academy Resumes Sessions

Moderator Reads Theocritus; Rev. John Moran, S.J., of Weston to Lecture

The end of the spring recess witnessed the renewal last Friday evening of the Hellenic Academy's activities when the members met in Lower Loyola to continue their pursuits in Greek literature under the tutelage of Mr. Callahan, S.J. After the formal procedure of calling the meeting to order, the moderator himself, due to the absence of many members, translated and gave enlightenment to sections of the 15th Idyl of Theocritus which the Academy is studying.

Later C. Stanislaus Horgan, '33, Robert V. Fay, '33, Philip D. Moriarty, '33, joined in the He alluded to the dramatic character portrayal and the life of the Alexandrian Era, seen through the dialogue, as the true value of the Idyl from the literary standpoint, the astute shifting from one person to another conveying particular emphasis and the colloquial touches with concomitant action between the lines resembling the works of the modern Browning. Giving a resume of the appreciation, the moderator emphasized the realism and humor so prevalent in the mime. Thus the students gleaned interesting oddities, customs, and characteristics of the early Greeks.

The entire matter for future reading is undecided. The moderator has secured several copies of the New Testament and to encourage this penchant, Father Moran, S.J., Professor of Dogmatic Theology at Weston College, will lecture Thursday evening.

Purple Patcher

Robert Seaman, '31, editor of this year's Purple Patcher, announced that the work of producing the year book was progressing rapidly. The proofs have been approved and have been returned to the printer for final publication. It is requested that all those who have write-ups yet to be handed in, will submit them as soon as possible in order that the work of publication may not be delayed.

The cover has been received from the bookmaker. It has a black background with a design consisting of a knight on horseback, done in gold, carrying a shield with a cross, thus carrying the Crusader idea which is so closely connected with the traditions of this college.

IN THE NEWS

JOHN M. DUCEY, '32

Almost simultaneously, three weeks ago today, two shocks spread wave-like over the continent. One caused quivering of the little needles in delicate instruments at a few scattered seismographical observatories; the second made its tremblings felt in every city and town, in the heart of every person to whom Rockne was the Great Man of football. The first tumbled pretty stucco and adobe dwellings into the close-clipped clipped gardens and dusty streets of Nicaragua's capital, crushing the life out of several hundred bodies; the second shock with surprise and sadness millions of hearts, and called forth eloquent tribute from those hearts to the Great Man.

Managua may not be rebuilt, but there will be another capital of Nicaragua. There will never be another Rockne; there will never be another Head Coach at Notre Dame (the title of the coach in charge will be "Senior Coach"). People may remember Managua's spectacular death; they will never forget Rockne's inspiring life.

The Nicaraguan disaster brought into sharp relief the dependence of the Central American power upon our country. Practically all of the relief work was done under the direction of Americans, through the Navy, the Marines, and the Red Cross. Ships and planes raced to the stricken city with anesthetics, food, blankets. The first knowledge of the city's plight was sent out over Managua's radio transmitter by an ex-Marine, who ran out to his station, four miles from the city, as soon as the catastrophe happened. The southern Republic can well be glad that it had a capable Big Brother in that emergency.

The crash of the plane in Kansas caused a sharp decline in passenger traffic over airlines for the next few days. Practically no one noticed the encouraging report on air transport issued by the Department of Commerce: in the last six months of 1930, only two passengers were killed in 51,482,633 passenger-miles of flight.

Shocking, too, were the results of recent elections. The votes of Chicago citizens vigorously and unceremoniously booted out blustering "Big Bill" Thompson, whose strength as political boss had won him the office of Mayor thrice previously. Chicagoans are not certain that their new choice, Cermak, will be a great deal better, except that they are sure he could not be worse. The new Mayor, sworn in less than 48 hours after the votes were cast, started off by shocking three thousand non-Civil Service city employees (appointed by Thompson) out of their jobs. He also made threatening public statements about the evil days that lie ahead for Chicago's crookdom. We are unable to report whether the crooks were shocked by the announcement.

The King of Spain was shocked when his people piled up huge majorities for the republican candidates in the first elections Spain has had in years. Americans were surprised that Alfonso, popular in this country, should be so treated by his subjects. In the Cradle of Democracy, Home of the Free, etc., sympathies were more with the ex-

JULIUS CAESAR CAST DECIDED

Roles of Brutus, Cassius and Casca to be Interchanged

The final preparations for the Players' third production, Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar," are well under way. The dress rehearsal will take the stage of the Worcester Theatre one week from today and the two public performances will be given on the following evenings, Wednesday and Thursday, April 29 and 30. The scenery for the play is exceptionally striking. Painted for the Charles Handcroft professional Shakespearean company, every detail was most carefully studied and aptly carried to effect a Roman atmosphere that is captivating. The Forum, Brutus' Garden, the Roman Senate, the Plains of Philippi are artistically and realistically staged. These sets were bought outright last fall and are loaned to the college for this year's production through the kind co-operation of Rev. Raymond Sullivan, S.J., of Boston.

Efforts were made to procure costumes in keeping with the scenery. Boston was combed without satisfaction; the best set of "Julius Caesar" costumes was found in the wardrobe of Charles Chrisdie & Co., New York. These have been rented. To give the richest and fullest effects to complete the scenic and costume background, music, proper to the play, has been suggested by Father Gilleran, moderator of the Musical Clubs, and the college orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. J. Edward Bouvier, will execute these compositions.

Rehearsals in Fenwick were resumed last Wednesday and will continue intensively to the performances. A call for auxiliaries was responded to by many students and a capable and intelligent group will assist the principals. The Roman populace in Shakespeare's mind was an integral part of the play. The contrast between the Patricians and Plebeians, the ascendancy of the former and the fickleness of the latter was of no small account in delineating the characters of Caesar, Brutus, Anthony and Cassius. Hence, the citizens in the play take a really vital part and can either mar or perfect the work of the principals, especially of Brutus and Anthony in the oration scene. The soldiers and senators, too, are necessary as complements to the grouping and background of the several scenes. Work for the remaining days will involve the cast in co-ordinating and balancing the several groups for an even and convincing portrayal that will make the days of Caesar and Rome vivid and real, centuries after their passage in time.

The director has determined to stand by his earlier decision to cast Hampsey, Moakley and Zeller in the role of Brutus. The reason for such a novel attempt is simply this: no one of the three preeminently surpassed either of the others and each has certain good qualities which deserved to be presented as worthy of the cast and of each inilled Bourbon monarch than with Spain's new rulers. In fact, many rather hope that the Republicans will make a mess of their country's affairs, that in another year the Spaniards will be calling back their King.

dividual's efforts throughout the rehearsals. A similar circumstance impelled the director to try Kirwin and Hidalgo alternately in the roles of Cassius and Casca. Each does both parts well and it was thought feasible to allow both actors to show their versatility to the public. It will be interesting to see how the different actors convince by their portrayals their respective audiences and, of course, differences of opinion will supply matter for discussions. In all cases the players are getting valuable experience and the audiences variety. It is a venture that may start something for the future in dramatics at the Cross.

McGivern as Antony promises a creditable performance. He is especially effective in the scenes over the dead body of the assassinated Caesar in the third and fourth acts. Healy as Caesar carries the Shakespearean version of the character well. The conspirators, Decius, Metellus, Cinna, Trebonius, are tellingly represented by McCann, Graf, Percy, Murray, respectively. The mob is led by John Burke and Sam Smith; both work well together with the crowd of Romans and lend the only humorous elements in the tragedy. Sam Smith also plays the Soothsayer with effect. The female roles are in the capable handling of Deeley as Caesar's wife, Calpurnia, and Trivett as Brutus' wife, the beautiful Portia. These female impersonators promise as clever work as their former portrayals in "R.J." and the one-act plays, which means superb acting. The remaining principals are "Popilius Lena" and "Pindarus," Joseph O'Reilly; "Lucius," servant to Brutus, Thomas O'Keefe; "Servius," servant to Antony, Frank Sullivan; "Flavius," servant to Caesar, J. Albert Currier; "Octavius," Frederick Waters.

Those taking the parts of citizens are F. Jeremiah, '32, J. O'Connor, '32, R. Coughlin, '32, R. Howe, '32, C. Boyle, '31, W. Dozois, '34, J. Ducey, '32, W. O'Connor, '32, J. Morgan, '31, R. Loftus, '32, H. Rafferty, '32, C. Murphy, '32, F. Gallagher, '32. The Roman soldiers are E. McCue, '32, S. Bergin, '32, L. Barry, '32, J. Auth, '31, J. Cronan, '31, T. Scannell, '33, I. Zyntell, '33, T. McNally, '33. Ray Leddy, '33, Joseph Bracken, '32, Daniel Lynch, '32, Thomas Bannin, '32, J. O'Donnell, '32 and Leo Kelley, '32 will appear as senators.

Tickets for the performances are on sale at the college in the management of Ed Keenan '31, business manager of the Players. Students are entitled to one ticket for the orchestra. They may buy as many as they wish at special rates, fifty cents below the cost to the public. The seats for public sale are priced at $2.00 a box seat, $1.50 for front orchestra, $1.00 for rear orchestra and front balcony, 50c for rear balcony and the gallery. The Worcester Club of Undergraduates, through their moderator, Rev. Thomas A. Shanahan, S.J., and representatives, has taken two hundred tickets and pledges the sale of that number. Representatives of the Dramatic Club will offer for sale to the students of the high and normal schools of Worcester and the neighboring colleges, a limited number of tickets. The hope is high for packed houses at the two performances.

PARENTS' NIGHT HUGE SUCCESS

Worcester Club Host to Members' Families at College

On Thursday, April 9th, the Worcester Undergraduate Club conducted its annual Parents' Night in Fenwick Hall, which is unanimously agreed to have been the most successful social event conducted by the club in some time.

The evening was formally opened with Benediction in the Memorial Chapel, at 7:30 p. m., and Fenwick Hall was thronged to capacity at 8:00 p. m. for the program of entertainment which followed.

The first number on the program was given by Danahy's Orchestra, who were on the program through the courtesy of John Croteau, '31. Following this, a skit, entitled "A Day in a Broadcasting Studio," was presented with the following members of the club portraying the various roles: Ed McClure, Charles Bergin, John Croteau, John J. O'Connor, and Paul B. McArdle. Miss Elizabeth Price, accompanied by Miss Katherine Bowe, next gave a few vocal selections. George Molloy, '31, and his brother, Bart Molloy, next offered a specialty number which proved most entertaining. Mr. Francis A. Burns, local radio tenor, accompanied by Miss Kathleen McGuinn, then presented several selections which were well received.

The next portion of the program was given over to a debate on a question of local government: "Resolved, That the Present City Council should be reduced in number of members." The debate was won by the affirmative side, made up of John J. Loftus, '31, and John Mahoney, '31. The negative side was upheld by Patrick Roche, '33, and Arthur J. Spring, '32. Mr. Spring's presentation and speech were the best of the evening, but could not save the side. The chairman of the evening was Irving T. McDonald, librarian. The board of judges were: Cecil J. Haggerty, Ph.D., Alfred V. Boursey, A. M., and Francis A. Drumm, A.B.

The final number on the program was the play, "Copy," by Kendall Banning, a comedy-drama involving a plot of newspaper life. The cast had been rehearsing for some time under the direction of George P. Molloy, '31 and acquitted themselves most admirably. Members of the cast were: John Conlon, '33, David Lay, Charles F. Daly, '31, William Thomas, Samuel Smith, '32, Adams, Joseph M. Reidy, '31, Pratt, Thomas O'Connor, '34, Jimmy, Richard F. Halloran, '31, Baldwin, Thomas F. McGovern, '31, Wilson. All of the student actors are to be commended for the work and interest which they displayed in the play and also for the fine performances which they gave, especially John Conlon and Charles Daly.

Thomas F. Price, '31, was the chairman of the affair, and along with Rev. Thomas A. Shanahan, S.J., deserves high commendation for the success of the affair. More events of a similar nature are planned by the club.

The club, through its moderator, wishes at this time, to express its thanks and appreciation to all of those outside of the club and the student body, who assisted in making the affair a success.

Campus Opinions

By Tony Woods, '33

Note: In an effort to bring this column to the notice of the reading public of the college the following question was asked. The answers speak for themselves.

This week's question: "What is wrong with this column and how would you improve it?"

Joe Zilch, '32.—"I think that all the back-numbers of the column should be bound together in a massive volume and be presented to the Beavenites, so that they may keep the swinging doors shut tighter in future winters. Furthermore the editor should be summarily shot or sent to study hall for the rest of his sentence."

Pat Zwack, '33.—"The student body should hand in the questions. This would assure greater interest in the column and would give students something to think about besides love during the spring months."

Worthington Peabody, '31.—"As a senior I speak from experience, and it is my opinion that this column should devote itself to solving campus mysteries. As the most important question at hand, let the seluths of the campus start solving the reason why the side doorway to Loyola has never been opened."

Chalmaundeleay Cheezecake, '34.—"Although I am only a freshman and my ethics may be far astray, I think that a picture of the editor should be run at the top of the column. This would lend a humorous touch to the column which has hitherto been lacking."

Bronques Cheere, '33.—"When this question came to my notice, I gave it my deepest consideration because I have always read the column (thanks). I think the column should devote itself to literary topics such as the influence of the new campus benches on the writing of poetry by the student Miltons."

Next week's question: What was your funniest experience on the Easter trip? (Speak up musicians)

GRANTED

By Francis Cronin, '33

That pinch-hitting for a friend who has fallen on the battlefield of books, is no snap.

That from early appearances the mob will be the chief feature of the forthcoming production, "Julius Caesar."

That J. Andrew Burke has the makings of a fine strike agitator, judging from his work with the mob in the aforementioned thespian effort of ye good Dramatic Society.

That derbies don't fit everyone quite as well as the pictures say they had ought to.

That the new jackets of the Red Clover Bicycle Club are the best ever.

That a good time is always had by those who have a good time that way.

That sometimes concertina players will undo their popularity.

That times were different when mother was a girl—but then, so was mother.

That there are two ways of pressing a stiff shirt, but only one of them makes it look well.

That Nature is hard to beat. What can be more cute than the way in which the skin fits a banana.

That a sure way to ruin for a rising young football star this fall will be to run into Joe Jansa, while he leads the Purple offense.

That there must be something fascinating about trumpet players.

That many of the gay young damsels whom we meet at these all-night dances are the same ones who are always too tired to do the dishes.

History Club Holds Meeting

the present organization now bears, and their work has continued down to the present day.

In the third paper Frederick Connolly took up the consideration of historical monuments. He told of the different types of monuments and evaluated each type. The importance of these monuments was rated according to the size, shape, material and whether they were real, mixed, or written. Then the discussion went to the various kinds of documents—the treaty, writ, proclamation and announcement. This paper was especially valuable in clearing up the difficulties that arise in this important branch of history.

The next meeting of the History Academy will be held Thursday night at seven o'clock in Room 10, O'Kane. Topics under discussion for this meeting were announced by the moderator. A paper will be read by John Dwight, '33, on "An Archaeological Trip Through Palestine," and "Russia in Modern History," will be considered by Anthony Woods, '33. President Lilly will present the third paper on "Eusebius, the Historian." Secretary Harry Kirwin, '33, will introduce important matters for discussion at this meeting.

PURPLE OFFERS APRIL ISSUE

Poetry Features Publication With Interesting Stories and Essays

In the April issue of the Purple, the articles are especially well-done and worth reading. "The Friends Thou Hast," by Luke Smith, '32, possesses a "human interest" element that is quite appealing; and throughout is subtly satirical. Thomas Carlin, '34, treats his "Some Aspects of Realism" in a convincing and thorough, perhaps too thorough manner. One sentence is rather striking: "Man is the subject of the Greek drama; the subject of the modern novel is To mand Dick." This quotation quotation seems to clinch the whole discussion.

"On Attitudes," by Lewis Wheelock, though written, apparently, in a rather "rebellious" vein, is backed up by a good supply of sound reasoning. It is refreshing to read one who is "different." Mr. Greene's "On Teeth" is chock full of honest to goodness humor. The author, indeed, reminds us of a certain Robert Benchley. James Doyle writes, also, on "Seneca's Influence on English Literature."

James Doyle has another contribution called "Sketches." This is excellent and most true to life, especially the sketch of Delia and Joe. The author appears to have great potentialities along this line. "Episode," written by Frank McGrady, '31, though good as a psychological study, is a trifle long drawn-out and slow to reach a climax.

"The Old Lawn Swing," by James McGovern, '34, and "Hope," by John Dwight, '33, are perhaps outstanding in the line of poetry. The former is quite applicable to the season of the year. Thomas Brack has a brief but good piece in "When Spring Shall Come." Frank Nash, '31, has caught the spirit of the "poetry months" in his "Spring Warning." Rather contrasting tones are exemplified in Joseph Duggan's "Snow in April" and these are competently carried out into a most satisfactory conclusion. Raymond Leddy has a poem symbolic of the Lenten season through which we have just passed. It is called "Faithful 'Faithful Found Among the Faithless,'" and is characterized by a pleasing echo effect.

"A Word in Parting," the product of Frank Cronin, '33, is a bit sentimental, but anyhow, at this particular time, the minds of all the boys are "turning to thoughts of love." "The Lily," by John Kent, '31, is imaginatively pleasing. Another contribution by Frank Nash, "Awakening," and a light piece by Joseph Duggan, "Coquette," complete the poetry line, the bulk of the issue.

The short stories are fair, that by J. Leo O'Gorman, '33, being the best. The ending is cleverly conceived. The title "So Young, So Fair," is very apropos to the story. "Don Loma Marquella," by Chris J. Reynolds, '33, is entertaining and very well written.

The "Under the Rose" column, conducted this month by Edward Hidalgo, has a very good underlying idea, and is skillfully treated. The "Moon of Books," editorials, and sport program close a fairly good issue.

FITCHBURG FETES COACH McEWAN

Alumni and Undergraduates Give Banquet in Mentor's Honor

WALTER P. DONLAN, '19, ACTS AS CHAIRMAN

Fitchburg alumni and undergraduates of Holy Cross gave a complimentary banquet at Hotel Raymond in that city, Tuesday evening, April 7th, to Captain John J. McEwan, coach of the college football squad. It was the first social gathering ever held by the Fitchburg alumni, as such, and the initiative for it was taken by Herbert P. Sullivan, '19, a teacher in Fitchburg high school. It was arranged on short notice but he succeeded in having all but a few former students of Holy Cross at the tables.

The number present included seven guests, 18 alumni and 19 undergraduates. The guests, other than Captain McEwan, were Rev. William Murphy, S.J., and Rev. Maurice Dullea, S.J., representing the faculty of the college; Atty. Jeremiah H. Kelliher, captain of Amherst College baseball team in 1908; John Phillips, Georgetown, '28; Thomas Donnelly, Boston University, '28; and Joseph Pietrowski of Fitchburg, who acted as pianist during the dinner and for the singing which followed it.

Prayer was offered by Rev. Martin J. Forhan, '20, now of St. Bernard's Church, Fitchburg. Herbert P. Sullivan, called the gathering to order, spoke briefly after dinner and introduced Walter P. Donlon, '21, who acted as toastmaster. Others who spoke were Rev. Frs. Murphy and Dullea, Capt. McEwan, Atty. Kelliher, Henry Healey, '27, now of the faculty of Fitchburg Normal School; Mr. Phillips, James D. Ryan, '96; Dr. James J. Spring, '07, and Dr. Cornelius E. Geary, '03, a former Holy Cross football player.

The undergraduates who attended were: 1931—Bernard L. Doheny, pres-undergraduate club; Leo T. Carney, James A. St. Armand, Arthur P. Ward, Thomas J. Morgan, Franklyn G. Asselta.

1932—Edwin Moriarty, Richard Palmer.

PAULDING TALKS ON GOLDSMITH

Former Shakespearean Actor Reads "She Stoops to Conquer"

About one hundred people, including a large number of townspeople and nuns from the city, heard a very entertaining and instructive lecture given by Dr. Frederick Paulding in Fenwick Hall last Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock.

Dr. Paulding, a well known lecturer and former Shakespearean actor, dealt chiefly with Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" reading practically the entire play, making many comments on it, and contrasting the older comedies with those produced in this age. Decrying the neglect of Shakespeare and his contemporaries, Dr. Paulding stated that too much emphasis was placed on a pure analysis of the older plays.

A true appreciation of their charm, he declared, cannot be derived from a simple reading for after all they were written to be acted. A presentation such as he suggested, would help students of English Literature by placing their subject in its correct medium. Continuing in this strain, he said that all plays should be seen before being read.

The speaker's wide experience with the theatre gave his words authority. Dr. Paulding clearly showed his knowledge of the topic under discussion and an interested audience, while not as large as it might be, enjoyed his lecture for nearly two hours.

A good golfer must have endurance and so must his listeners.

Clara was so dumb she thought the store was closed when she read the sign: "HOME BAKING."

Mother: "My daughter got her singing voice from me."

Friend (?): "You ought to be happy you are rid of it."

Don't take life so seriously, you'll never get out of it alive.

She always felt bad when she felt well because she knew she would feel worse afterwards.

"In good looks I'm not a star, You are more lovely by far, But my face—I don't mind it, Because I'm behind it, It's the people in front that I jar."

Among other things learned in a visit to the barns, a few items are noted for the benefit of those who can't seem to forget the dear old farm back home:

The cows are bathed and brushed once a day, every morning. Therefore, there is no ground for complaining against the milk we get in the refectory, unless the bath water gets in the cans.

It seems that the man in charge of the barns does not want to incriminate himself and instead of naming the cows he has numbered them. Believe it or leave it, that is the only place on the Hill where beings are numbered.

The average production of milk now is an average of 280 quarts daily under the capitalistic system. The other day one cow refused to give milk and the rest of them went on a sympathetic strike. The bull ain't saying nothing.

There are only four horses but oh my! how easily can one be deceived by looking around the campus.

The pane of glass bearing the inscription of "President's Office" now graces the door of the pig-pen.

The number of pigs could not be ascertained because their were so many Wednesdays last winter.

There are seven bee-hives, but gosh! where is the honey???

The conservatory (ahem!) houses all those beautiful plants we have on the campus in the spring. The temperature is kept at about 81.27° F. And you can take these roses, Mr. Bannister, and . . .

If anyone sees a car with registration 355355 around town don't hesitate to ask for a lift. It is the college car. (Peerless).

There is one pheasant in the menagerie (Fr.) which easily takes the claim of being the most beautiful thing up here.

The chicken we get on Sundays are not raised here. The ones you see around are just for effect.

And we can't help putting in this one overheard during vacation: A young man went fishing and two days later wired his wife, "I got one, weighs seven pounds and it is a beauty." And the wife wired back, "I've got one, too. Weighs ten pounds, it looks like you, better come home."

Carpe Noctem

The campus has again reawakened to life. The last session of classes has begun with the return of the students from their Easter vacation. The natural campus has also heard the clarion of spring and is making haste to deck herself in the most beautiful of all her colors, green. Underfoot and overhead one is conscious of the revivification of the earth. Beauty is apparent on all sides.

Every corner of the campus is the scene of some activity. Sport is the king of the festival, and by his side sits his helpmate and queen, Spring. Both have conspired to lure into the open every person on the hill. Never is there a moment in the afternoon when a lull occurs and pastimes are laid aside. The benefits are unquestioned, but misuse of them may end disastrously.

A spirit of lassitude is stealing through the twilight. Nature is a cruel temptress besides a bountiful provider. She is a charmer who lures her victims into a false sense of security until disaster is at hand. For the student she fashions long days and short nights, heaps up her alluring gifts and tempts the scholar to give indulgence to his fancy. But, in the case of the students, fancy usually means an escape from scholastic pursuits and classroom routine. She drugs his spirit and his mind with the drug of outdoor activity in the afternoon and in the evening, and, his resolve being weakened, he heeds her call to inactivity. She artfully prolongs a beautiful day, saving "the best wine for the last." She intoxicates the being of young men with her elixir and persuades them that study is a fruitless task.

Short nights! Many an academic ship has been wrecked because it was piloted by the demon, Fever. Were nature kind she would quickly don her mantle of right instead of vainly parading before her mirror, the World, displaying her exotic beauty and deluding the fanciful youth that the hour of reckoning is still far off.

"Carpe diem sed carpe noctem." Thus does the wise student unite the wisdom of Horace, but he adopts this translation, "Enjoy the day, but make use of the night."

Russia's New Idea

Lately we have been hearing quite a bit of talk about the famous Five Year Plan of the Soviet Union. A certain motion picture concern has taken it upon itself to explain the workings of this Plan to the American people "without saying a word either for or against it." A very laudable resolve to be sure and one which is in accord with fundamental American principles, but will it be carried out? WE are not accusing this motion picture concern one way or the other, but it does not require poetic flights of the imagination to realize that a very false impression about Russian affairs could be created through pictures in the minds of a majority of people, who have neither the time nor the inclination to look into the matter for themselves.

The purpose of this article is not to explain the workings of the Five Year Plan in detail, for such an undertaking would require volumes. The main object of the Soviet regime is to convert the rest of the world to Sovietism. They contend that their struggle against capitalism and imperialism cannot be complete until every nation in the world is seeped in the fundamental principles of Redism. Their first step in this world-wide reform is to make Russia independent economically and every other way from the rest of the world. As the nucleus of all Communistic activity, Russia must be absolutely free from all dependence on other countries. Hence the Five Year Plan. All efforts are being made to advance Russia to industrial perfection, which would first assure the Soviet state economic independence, then advance it to industrial preeminence, and finally to a political mastery of the world. To accomplish this all the people are being employed by the government, for according to Communism the state is all and the individual is nothing. Hand in hand with the Soviet government, American machinery and capital is aiding in the attainment of this goal. Does it not seem ironical that American capitalists are helping the Soviets to realize their ambition, which if carried out logically, would mean the destruction of these same American capitalists?

Watch Tower

By Robert F. McDonough, '32

ECLECTIC MURMURS FROM A BEAVEN TOMB . . . Upon hearing from a Watchtower enthusiast (the room-mate) that our Library has somewhere on its shelves "Hoiah," "Andy Carroll's Second Year at Holy Cross" and the immortal "Schooner Ahoy," we were struck with curiosity as to whether Yale's Sterling Memorial Library has as yet officially recognized the saga of the Merriwells . . . George Spaulding, a senior at Notre Dame, won this year's short-story writing contest of The Ladies' Home Journal. According to the Notre Dame Scholastic, Spalding had previously been the recipient of as many rejection slips from the better magazines as are needed to completely cover the walls of a room in Sorin Hall, at the University . . . Speaking of those kind but firm little notes that publishers often send to embryo writers, we are reminded of a junior friend of ours who possesses as fine a collection of rejection slips as we have ever seen. After bombarding editors with manuscripts for three years, he finally succeeded in getting two pieces accepted for publication by an obscure musical monthly. The editor grew to rate our friend's work so highly that he was constantly crying for more. About five months ago the magazine was forced to discontinue publication. Dearth of advertisers was the reason given . . . It seems that the current ambition among Holy Cross writers is to have something of theirs in America before they graduate. One of our better known scribes recently dispatched a manuscript to the editors of that publication and it bounded back almost with the next mail. Affixed was a fatherly criticism, the substance of which was that the submitted essay smacked a bit too much of the preachy . . . If you are no longer thrilled when a campus publication adjudges something of yours fit to print and you wish to conquer a few less tolerant editors, you might try submitting material to newspaper columnists. They will print anything in the line of light verse or humorous comment that meets their standards and at the same time does not run much over two hundred words in length. Standards vary from columnist to columnist. George Ryan of the Boston Herald can be relied upon to print anything and everything submitted. F. P. A. of the Herald Tribune is a bit more meticulous in his selections for The Conning Tower, to be among his regular contributors brings a distinction second only to that of having an essay accepted by The Hound and Horn. . . We have been seen to leave more than one room when the conversation deteriorated into a discussion on that seemingly ever-popular topic, "What Holy Cross needs is—" But here we are about to use that same line ourselves. What Holy Cross needs is some sort of a literary society to correspond to the Scribblers at Notre Dame and like organizations in other colleges. The activities of such an association would consist not only in an occasional meeting with the inevitable "paper" cribbed from an encyclopedia and read nervously to the discomfort of all present, but in mutual criticism of work, a yearly contest of some sort, informal addresses from time to time by men who have run editorial

INTERCOLLEGIATE HOUR

James G. McDevitt, '32

If you are bright, you can get an education at Millsap's college, Mississippi, at a fairly low figure. This year a system of tuition charges has been adopted whereby you pay your tuition in a direct ratio to your scholarship. The basis of payment is the marks of the previous year, and the higher the marks the less the tuition costs. How much would some of us have to pay?

It may be old now but we have to tell it just the same. In a certain Yale Biology class, "Yes and No" quizzes are given weekly, and an exceptionally bright blind student was permitted to use a typewriter in writing his answers. High marks were no novelty to the entire class and the professor wondered at this, till he noticed that the whole class listened for the number of taps made by the typewriter. He asked the blind student to reverse his answers and the class got zero.

gauntlets, and the lending of typewriting facilities to men who otherwise might be forced to limit production because of such a lack . . . You have probably noticed that many of the Library's acquisitions within the past few months have been English editions. A good opportunity is offered to compare bookmaking of this country and England. While not quite so ornate, the foreign product seems far more able to stand the wear and tear of library usage than the more eye-pleasing American editions.

Americans have been admired for many things but the latest reason for admiration, and even of envy, exists at the University of Amsterdam, Holland. At this university, the American group is thought to be the most interesting on the campus, and they are envied because they can enjoy the privilege of drinking and indulging in conversation after 1 A. M., the official curfew time. And well they might be envied.

Never boost a competitor's business, seems to be the official attitude of Harvard in respect to at least one subject. Harvard's contract with the makers of "Yale" locks, stipulates that the name of Yale shall be omitted from all such locks installed in Harvard. If Yale should adopt a similar policy I suppose the Harvard Classics in the Yale Library would have to be bound in plain cloth covers.

This would merit an extra out-permission if our former Dean of Discipline were still in office. At the University of Alabama a student whose hair was long and wavy, told the authorities that he was leaving school because he had tried all the barbers in town, and none of them could cut his hair right.

Twins who not only looked alike, but even thought alike, were accused of cheating in a civil service examination at Arkansas State College, when their papers were found to be almost identical. The university officials assured the government, however, that this could not have been the case, and offered the explanation that the two were twins. We wonder how many sets of quadruplets there are here?

The Naval Academy officials received a call-down recently by a candidate whose grades for admission were not high enough. After telling the officials that too much attention was paid to studies, the disappointed youth said, "You can't expect a 217 pound all-around athlete to have much time for studies," and added that he had expected to play on the Navy football team next fall. We have a 260 pounder who does pretty well!

We of The Tomahawk take this opportunity to extend our sincere thanks to the staff of the Villanovian for their recent complimentary mention of The Tomahawk. To the newly elected staff we send our best wishes for a prosperous and successful term of office.

Sanctuary Society Meets This Friday

Prospective Mass Servers Learn Fundamentals Rapidly

Friday evening, immediately after Chapel, there will be a meeting of those learning how to serve Mass in Room 12 in the O'Kane Building.

The number of fellows who turned out for these classes has been large and the manner in which they learned the fundamentals has been surprising.

Mr. Biggins is very satisfied with the candidates and he expects that within the next few weeks all the members of this class will be able to serve very well. This is the second class of beginners that Mr. Biggins has trained this year.

Trials for the sophomore, junior and senior interclass debating teams will be held at the regular meeting of the B. J. F. Tuesday evening, April 21, at 7 o'clock. The trials will take the form of an open forum discussion on the subject posted on the debating board.

PETER SULLIVAN PLANS TOUR

European Voyage Mapped Out by H. C. Undergraduate

VISITS TO LEADING CITIES OUTLINED

The first Holy Cross group to tour Europe was organized and conducted in 1925 by David Cody Sullivan, '26. He conducted these tours until the summer of 1930 when he was ordained to the priesthood and the management of the Holy Cross parties was assumed by his brother, Peter Sullivan, Jr., '34, who conducted the group last year and will lead the annual Holy Cross Tour through Europe this summer. Sullivan is well qualified for this position for besides his experience in the European travel field he has conducted many groups in this country. He is associated in business with his father who is the president of the Sullivan Travel Service of Worcester, Mass., the organization which is conducting the tour.

The Holy Cross party will be joined by select groups from the University of Notre Dame and the College of St. Mary of the Wood of Terre Haute, Ind., the leading Catholic women's college of the middle west. While the tour will stress the cultural side of European travel, those features of entertainment which will make the summer one to be long remembered, will also be emphasized.

The group will sail from New York, July 3rd, on the tourist ship de-luxe, "Westernland." On this boat the "Cross" party will enjoy first-class accommodations and will travel in the highest class on board ship. The tourist accommodations on this ship should not be confused with the ordinary tourist class offered by most tours. Another feature which places this tour in a class by itself is the fact that while abroad the group will use exclusively first-class hotels, the names of which are listed for verification.

One of the most enjoyable sections of the tour is the trip through Switzerland by private limousines. For four days the party will tour the Swiss Alps, stopping at rustic mountain hostels and at fashionable lakeside resorts.

Landing at Plymouth, the party will tour England and from there will cross to quaint and picturesque Holland. From Holland the party will travel to Cologne, thence up the Rhine to Wiesbaden and Romantic Heidelberg. From here the party will go to Lucerne where the marvelous Swiss tour will commence. From Switzerland they will travel to Lugano; thence they will continue to sunny Italy. After a few days at Venice and the swanky Lido they will go to Florence where they will remain three days. From here they will travel to Rome. They will stay four days in the eternal city, during which time the party will have an audience with the Holy Father. From Rome they will travel to Genoa, thence to Nice and Monte Carlo. From the Riviera the party will go by way of Avignon. The party will spend a week in Paris and will have ample time to visit the habitats so well known to those who have enjoyed former Holy Cross tours. The party will sail on the 14th of August to New York where, after a glorious trip, ended all too soon, they will land.

Since the party is limited to 20 persons, any who may be interested in this glorious vacation are urged to get in touch with Peter F. Sullivan, Jr., who will be glad to furnish any further information. His P. O. Box is 1097, Holy Cross College.

Alumni Notes

Joseph P. Gallagher, '32

CLASS OF 1930

Bill Brennan, the popular captain of last year's cross-country team, is with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in New York City.

Tom Casson, another cross-country runner, is dividing his time between studying accounting at Columbia in the evenings, and aiding in the management of a country club by day. Tom expects to be going into an accountant's office in the fall.

John Hasslinger is to be found in the Bridgeport, Conn., branch office of the Traveler's Insurance Company. He represents the Claim Department of the company.

Jimmy Shevlin, hard-hitting captain of the 1930 baseball team, is starring for Toronto in the International League. His fielding around the first sack is as perfect as veer and if he continues to hit the ball hard and far as he has done since the season opened, he will soon be back in Detroit for another try at the position now held down by big Dale Alexander.

The "Inseparables," Jim Kelly and Frank Walsh, are both working in New York City. Frank is also attending evening classes at Fordham Law School, while Jim intends to continue his legal studies next fall.

John J. Verdon was married on April 14th, to Miss Hazel Pindar, at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Hoboken, N. J.

Holy Cross Man Signally Honored

Joseph F. Wickham, '04, is Knighted by King of Italy

Mr. Joseph F. Wickham, '04, has recently received from the King of Italy the rank of Knight of the Order of the Crown of Italy. This is in recognition of his writings on topics pertaining to Italy. Mr. Wickham is head of the Townsend Harris Hall of the College of the City of New York, in the English Department and is director of fifteen different instructors. He has published a book, "The English Essay," which was universally praised by the reviewers; he is a regular contributor to Catholic magazines, including The Catholic World, America, and the Educational Review of the Catholic University and is also one of the book reviewers of the Catholic World. In 1926 Mr. Wickham received the degree of Dr. of Literature from Holy Cross College. He is one of four brothers, all of whom are Holy Cross graduates. They are: Rev. John E. Wickham, '99, of New York; Dr. Thomas W. Wickham, '09, of Boston; and Dr. George S. Wickham, '14, of Lee, Mass.

General Electric Contributions to Health

at College
at Home
at Play

COLLEGE-TRAINED electrical engineers cooperated with the medical profession in developing G-E products that safeguard health. Notable among these are the x-ray tube, the G-E refrigerator, and the G-E Sunlamp. Of these three, the Sunlamp is the latest development, but it has already been acclaimed for its service in helping build that vitality which maintains the happiness of good health.

At Cornell University, members of "cold-prevention classes" (under daily, brief, ultra-violet-ray lamp treatments) reported 40 per cent less colds than were reported by classmates in a group without this treatment. Beyond home and college, the use of Sunlamps has extended to swimming pools and indoor golf courses. In the future, you may enjoy the Sunlamp as a standard fixture in offices, trains, clubs, and many other places where people gather.

And you may continue to expect new, unusual, and useful developments from G-E engineering and research. Among such products, there will doubtless be further contributions to personal health, comfort, and convenience, as well as to the promotion of industrial efficiency.

CROSS CAMPUS

By Kennedy Mathias Kennedy, '34

The championship of the late eaters has finally narrowed down to two veterans. Owen McGivern has proven decisively that he can eat longer than anyone else in the upper refectory, while Tom Carlin has outdistanced all comers in the lower refectory. Some night when there is no chapel to hasten their pace these two men ought to be paired together at the same table to decide definitely the gastromomic championship.

With the issuing of uniforms on Friday, the Frosh baseball squad has begun to look like a real ball club.

The original turnout of candidates for the team resembled a masquerade, or maybe the Philadelphia Mummers' Parade. The sport effect was there all right, but with a greatly disheveled appearance. Every type of uniform that was ever used for, or had anything to do with baseball, football, track, basketball, lacrosse, tennis or golf, was represented. For a while we were afraid that the team, for actual baseball uniforms, and also taking into account wear and tear and the general instability of the cotton crop, would eventually be simmered down to seven pants, five pairs of socks, three shirts, three caps, and a pair of spikes.

Until the end of the year, the members of the spring Study Hall Club are intending to meet on Saturday afternoons down at Fitton Field. The purpose of this novel change is to use the club men to chase stray balls during Varsity bating practice. They will also be very handy in aiding the outfielders in case rival teams are pasting the pill. If this system is put into service, it will be the first time that the Study Hall Club ever was represented by its own athletic squad. Just think of the material it will develop for future managers. Someone made the suggestion to hold an elimination contest, with the fellow finding the most balls being elected manager of next year's team.

Tom Goonan dropped into a men's furnishing shop on Front Street the other day and, between sneezes from a spring cold, called for a suit of heavy winter underwear. "How long?" inquired the obsequious clerk (clerks are always obsequious in these stories). "How long?", replied Goonan, "Why I don't want to rent them, I want to buy them."

Just a note to the fellows who are stuck for girls for the K. of C. Dance. According to an interesting advertisement featured in many newspapers and periodicals, prom girls can be secured on short notice for any section of the country. To add to the attraction, the proffered partners are described as rich widows. Whoa, one at a time fellows!

Now that the latest issue of the "Blacklist Semi-Quarterly" has been published, the usual hopes and desires of attaining to its select membership have been aroused in the hearts of many. It must be confessed that after the meetings have begun the monotony becomes somewhat wearing, but after all it is a distinction to be among the ten per cent of the college who are thus dignified for unusual behavior.

harmonic Orchestra and the Purple Crusaders dance orchestra, gave a series of five concerts, starting in Stamford on Tuesday evening, April 7, and continuing on successive nights at Waterbury, Danbury, Newark and Paterson. The return trip from New York was made by boat on Sunday evening, April 12.

The personnel of the Musical Club numbered sixty-eight for the trip, and the men were accompanied by Rev. J. Leo Gilleran, Faculty Advisor, Rev. Ahearn, moderator of the band, and Mr. J. Edward Bouvier, M.A., director.

The concerts were well attended and everywhere the men travelled they were greeted with most cordial receptions. Due to the success which attended each of their appearances the musicians received much well-deserved applause and the reciprocal effect of such encouragement was noticeable in the efforts of the collegians. Though the effects of the daily travel were slightly noticeable in the appearance of the Club members, they rendered each concert with renewed spirit and it was a tired, but happy crowd which sailed from New York.

The program was opened by the Philharmonic orchestra playing Victor Herbert's "American Fantasia," and with this typically American composition the instrumentalists scored an immediate hit. Six selections were played by the orchestra, as well as two more in which the Glee Club and orchestra both appeared. The most popular of the instrumental offerings was Romberg's "New Moon," and it was with regret that this number was omitted from the Newark program, due to the lack of time. The other groups by the orchestra consisted of two descriptive numbers, "In a Persian Market Place," and "A Chinese Temple Garden," both by Ketelby, and two more classical compositions, Friml's "Veil Dance" (O Mitake San) and Sschaikowsky's "Valse des Fleurs" from the "Nutcracker Suite." All of these were well received, meriting the highest of praise from the audiences to which they were presented.

The Glee Club made their initial appearance to the tune of three of the school songs, "Hoiah, Holy Cross," "Varsity Song," and "Chuch, Rah, Rah." In their next group they sang the selections, "Sylvia," "Forgotten," and a trio of Russian folk songs, "Fireflies," "The Song of the Lifeboat Men" and "At Father's Door." The melodious harmony of the first two numbers was effectively contrasted by the lively lilt of the Russian numbers to make this group one of the best of the vocal selections. "Adoramus Te," "The Long Day Closes," "The Trumpeter," "The Bells of Saint Mary's" and "Kyrie" completed the selections of the Glee Club. The last two numbers were especially suited to the voices of the singers and their effective renditions never failed to assure their success.

In Danbury, a theatre party and banquet was tendered to the musicians through the courtesy of Mr. Frank H. Lee, prominent business executive of that city. Again in Paterson, the men were the guests of a well-planned reception; this was in the form of a tea dance sponsored by the members of the St. Anthony's Girls' Club of Paterson; it was held at St. Anthony's Guild Club rooms where the visitors were also shown many original works of art, which were on display at the Guild.

In Newark, the club was housed at the Newark A. C., through the arrangements made by Mr. Paul J. Mulcahy, of that city. That evening a joint concert was given with the Glee Club of Saint Elizabeth's College. The sixty girls, under the capable direction of Prof. William H. Haddon, appeared with the Holy Cross Glee Club in three joint numbers, besides singing a group of four numbers of their own. Their voices were powerful and nicely modulated so to effect an artistic balance to the voices of the Holy Cross singers. During the concert, Directors Hadden and Bouvier alternated with the baton.

After each concert, dancing was enjoyed with Fred Mirliani and the Purple Crusaders supplying the rhythmic strains. Under Fred's direction the orchestra functioned smoothly and their novel arrangements brought forth many congratulatory remarks from the floor.

On the Tuesday evening after their return, the Glee Club and the Purple Crusaders journeyed to Woonsocket, R. I., where another successful concert was held.

In all the concerts the varsity quartet, comprising Payton, Reynolds, Towe and Caulfield, was featured and together with the soloists they lent a pleasant variety to the program. The soloists were: Baritone, Raymond J. Howe; Henor, Joseph A. Reynolds and Joseph F. Austin; Saxophone, Edward F. Xiques, President of the Musical Club; Violin Daniel J. O'Neil, Concert Master; Xylophone, Charles H. Doherty; Trumpet, Alfred F. Davino.

Tonight the Musical Club is at Lowell, Mass., where they will give another concert, followed by a dance.

Local Undergraduates Club Offer Annual Festival

Dancing to the delightful strains of Billy Murphy's Royal Arcadian Orchestra, over two hundred and fifty couples gathered at the Hotel Bancroft ballroom, Friday, April 10th, for the annual Easter dance of the Worcester Undergraduate Club. Under the direction of Joseph M. Reidy, '31, the affair was one of the most successful conducted by the club in some time. The ballroom was tastily decorated in holiday and school colors, with many decorative novelties added to make the scene most attractive. Mike Favulli, well-known campus figure, was the chairman of the decorations committee.

George P. Molloy, '31, and his assistants on the patrons' committee, arranged a list of many of the more prominent people of Worcester and headed by His Excellency, Governor Ely. The remainder of the list follows: Senator David I. Walsh, C. Edson Bemis, George F. Booth, Frank J. Bonardi, Mr. and Mrs. J. Carroll Brown, Roy L. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Buckley, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Conroy, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Feeley, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Granger, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Frank Gray, Frederick B. Madaus, Frank Narcus, Mr. and Mrs. John T. O'Connor, Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Randall, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Rebboli, Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Reidy, Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Swank, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cosgrove.

HANDBALL

During the past week, the champion pairs in three divisions of the handball tournament arrived at the tops of their respective heaps, and the final skirmishes will be battled out in the next few days. The victorious players in the senior class have not yet been decided.

All indications pointed to a speedy conclusion of the tourney before the Spring recess, but the zest for conquest was somewhat dimmed in the homeward rush, and the concluding rounds lagged. Last week, however, play was resumed with a new impetus to keep apace with the oncoming warm weather, with the result that only four matches stand between the finalists and the Intramural Charms.

In the senior section, McGovern-Price and Ridge-McCool are due to close for the laurels of Loyola. The victors in this set-to will then fight it out with Lynch-Lilly, who have already captured the crown in the junior class.

In the meantime, Zyntell-Scanell, the best of the sophomore handballers, will meet Graf-Blackmer, who have conquered all before them in the freshman division. After these contests have been run off, the victors will meet in the final championship match.

FRESHMEN PLAN FOR RECEPTION

Chairman Davino Prepares Novel Musical Treat

Plans for the annual Freshmen Reception are going rapidly forward under the capable direction of Al Davino and his various committees. The event will be held in Fenwick Hall on Friday evening, May 8th. Many innovations are under consideration to make this one of the most elaborate and interesting receptions ever presented on the hill.

A new feature to be introduced by Davino is a twelve piece orchestra, composed entirely of members of the class, which he has organized to furnish the music for the occasion. The vocal end of the program will be ably upheld by Connie Dwyer and Bill Joyce. Dan Honan will appear in a novel act which he has written especially for the occasion. Joe McEvoy and Ted Keegan have prepared a specialty which will contribute greatly to the success of the evening. Jerry Ahearn will present one of his humorous monologues which have made him sopopular among the members of the class. One of the highlights of the evening will be the act presented by Bud Farrell and Vin Tracy, upon which they have been hard at work since the close of the Easter vacation.

Rehearsals are being held daily and the progress that has been made augurs well for the success of the entertainment.

With the quarterly exams looming in the immediate future, the caption above is by no means an idle saying. The past week with its ideal weather has left the reading room of the library an almost deserted spot during the afternoon hours.

It may be of interest to some who dread the torrid days of May and early June to know that the Reading Room of the Library is one of the coolest places on the Hill on the hottest days of the year. This should particularly interest senior students who, for the most part, will be "on the grind" about the first of June for the long-dreaded orals which will be the culmination of their four year studies at Holy Cross. And for the many others who have left their work until the last minute, it may serve to ease the strain of the finals preparation.

GRID STARS GIVE PROMISE FOR '32

McEwan Plans Shifty Backfield and Stalwart Line

Displaying an aggressiveness that augurs well for the coming campaign in the fall, the fifty-odd candidates for the Crusader Varsity eleven swing into their second week of Spring practice. Blocking, passing, and fundamentals of a defensive nature coupled with dummy practice, constituted the major portion of the workouts during the past week. Coach McEwan was favorably impressed with the drills and has scrimmage sessions on the schedule for this week.

Although the team will lose the services of such outstanding and capable veterans as Garrity and Baker in the backfield, and Farrell, Pyne, Himmelberg, Clarke, and McCool in the line, yet there are many fine prospects from last year's squad and from the freshman eleven which will strengthen the team materially. Coach McEwan hopes to develop a more elusive and shifty backfield behind a heavier forward wall and from present indications his hopes will be fulfilled.

In order to see if the candidates were capable of running off the plays and formations as rehearsed during the first few days the Purple mentor started contact work Friday between two tentative teams. Team A was made up of Jarvis, freshman quarter, alternating with Rovinski at calling the plays; Griffin and Joe Meegan, at the halfback positions; and Hanis and Kelly at fullback. Jarvis, because of his punting ability should prove an asset to the Purple, if his performance for the frosh last fall can be duplicated. Collucci and Mulvey held down the wing positions. Jansa, the heaviest man on the Crusader squad, teamed with Planagan at the tackle berths while Carnicelli and Baironus, at guard, flanked Favulli at the pivot post.

Linemen at present engaged in other branches of sport, but who are expected to make the first string line, include Ambrose, Cavaleri, and Ryan. Phil O'Connell, Murray, and Clifford are the backfield men on the baseball squad.

The line will undoubtedly average close to 190 pounds while the backfield will be considerably heavier than the 1930 aggregation. The 1931 Crusader eleven is faced with a stiff schedule but from the enthusiasm and spirit so far shown, sportdom is destined to see an outstanding Holy Cross eleven cavort on the gridiron in the fall.

PURPLE PENNINGS

The season was officially opened on Monday, when Mayor O'Hara unfurled the Intercollegiate Championship flag and threw out the first ball. Captain Sims pitched a fine game to beat Brown, 3-2.

Ducker Farrell started something that didn't end so well. In the early part of the game, Tom hit Pitcher Sondheim on the shin, and it was no love tap. A short while later, Sondheim tried to catch Ducker off second base, but instead, caught him in the region of the cerebellum with the old horsehide. He came around all right in a few minutes, but we wonder if his head is a magnet for the ball. He also was hit in the Villanova game.

Jimmy, the new mascot of the ball club, has caused quite a sensation. Rumor has it that he is sixteen years old, and well advanced in high school. However, he handles himself like an experienced mascot. A Hoiah for Midge!

The warm Spring sun is giving a lobster hue to Capt. McEwan's gridders. The footballers were put through a scrimmage the second day out. Well, which do you

The University of Washington again opened its baseball season with the superstitious ritual, which has characterized its opening game for the past three years. Each year the team, in an impressive ceremony, buries a 1900 Indian head coin under home plate, as an omen of good luck for the coming season. The Huskies have won three straight Northwest championships and consider this superstitious ritual as a part of the winning psychology of the team and a deciding factor in each championship.

Boston College suffered a severe loss with the ineligibility of Johnny Dixon, former football captain. Dixon was expected to prove a mainstay to the baseball team this coming season since he has shown promise and ability as a hurler.

Tennis Season Opens Wednesday

Racquet Wielders Appear Against Strong Harvard Team

Next Wednesday afternoon the 1930 edition of the Holy Cross Tennis Team will make its initial appearance of the current season when it meets the Harvard racquet-wielders at Cambridge. The representatives of the Purple will hardly enter the match with anything that even approaches overconfidence. The present Harvard team is about the finest group of tennis players that have ever been assembled on one team. Under the able leadership of Malcolm T. Hill, former national junior champion for two years, and a player of high national ranking, their team has given promise of keeping their two-year record of being undefeated in intercollegiate competition unsullied. After a successful spring trip where they won seven straight matches, they have returned home to defend their honors in further matches.

While the exact status of the Holy Cross team will not be determined until late this afternoon, Captain MacLaughlan will probably choose his team from the following group: Foy, Carroll, Murray, Labbe, Dowd, Nicholson, Keenan, and Cahill. These players have shown the most ability in the pre-season practice, upon which their places depend. While they do not expect to defeat the intercollegiate champs, they have every intention of making this a real match. May they have the best of luck.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

JOHN M. JOY, '33

BASEBALL

While the nation was breathlessly reading the accounts of the first games in the major leagues, the intramural baseball teams swung into action last Wednesday, lured by the magnetic call of the diamond which has always seemed to have a special attraction at Holy Cross.

To say that the turnout for the national pastime was large is to put it mildly, for nearly every combine had more than twice the regular number of players available. In accordance with the custom in the intramural athletics, as many men as possible were used in each game.

In looking over the accounts of the contests of last week, it can easily be seen that the Pennocks, the Vances, and the Moores are mowing down the Ruths, the Gehrigs, and the Wilsons with great gusto, at least for the time being. In most of the games, the number of strikeouts has been abnormally large, and in one seven-inning battle, the opposing whippersnappers whiffed 26 batsmen between them.

The plan of dividing up the teams into five different leagues, as was the basketball competition, has been altered for the baseball season. All the nines will appear in the same league, so that every team will meet every other aggregation several times. The number of teams has been reduced to 14, the Worcester day-students being united with one team, and O'Kane III and Fenwick III also merging.

At present, the schedule is going forward at the rate of two or three games a day, and if that speed is continued, each team will get into action at least twice a week. Two diamonds have been prepared on the upper hill for the exclusive use of the intramural bat and glove men, and they will also use Alumni Field after the spring football sessions have been terminated.
